BOB FITZSIMMONS IS CHAMPION.

Bob Fitzsimmons is the champion middle-weight of the world.

He honestly won that title in the Olympic Club, New Orleans, on the night of January 14.

His opponent was Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil, who had theretofore held the championship, but, as our reports on other pages will show, Jack was scarcely "in it." He disappointed his friends, but it must be said to his credit that he was overmatched. Bob, the New Zealander, had a longer reach, was more sinewy, weighed more and was taller than his opponent. Those who wagered their money on Fitzsimmons counted with their host, and are now, in consequence, hilarious.

It is not to be denied that Jack Dempsey had the grit to get there. Circumstances were against him. All the same the Nonpareil is a favorite all over the world, and when he next enters the ring there isn't the iota of a doubt but that his opponent will have his hands full to down him.

As will be seen by our unexcelled returns from the battle-ground, a greater degree of excitement prevailed on the night of the meeting than was ever experienced in the Crescent City. Sporting men went fairly wild over the subject under consideration. The betting was strongly in favor of Dempsey until Fitzsimmons appeared in the ring. Then opinion took a sudden change. Dempsey and his friends were doomed to disappointment. He was finally knocked out.

The battle was for the largest amount ever fought for in a club-room. The stakes were $12,000, and the two men had outside personal bets amounting to several thousands more. They battled with the "Police Gazette" Standard Gloves, which are now used by all pugilists and boxers throughout the world.

And now a word about our own enterprise. In this issue we present a full report of the contest, even to the minutest particulars. We devote two whole pages to the written account of the fight and the preliminaries. Our double page delineates the progress of the fight; our front page depicts the gladiators as they entered the ring; our back page gives a truthful idea of the scenes and incidents attending the arrival of Fitzsimmons and Dempsey in New Orleans. Then, too, we have a full page of the portraits of those attending upon and most deeply interested in the contest.

The question of expense, time or trouble was not taken into consideration to attain the result we have attained.

Last week we asked our patrons to be patient and accept our delay of issue and that we would compensate them.

We, as usual, have kept our promise.

[WITH ILLUSTRATIONS AND PORTRAITS.]

Jack Dempsey, "the Nonpareil," was knocked completely out by "Bob" Fitzsimmons in the Olympic Club, New Orleans, on the night of January 14.

The full story of the fight, even to the minutest details, are given below. The men contended with "Police Gazette" standard gloves, and the battle was of short duration, Dempsey being overwhelmed in the thirteenth round.

"Gus" Tuthill, Jack McAniff, Jimmy Carroll, W. J. Chipman, Jimmy Colville and Tom Duffy took charge of the two men as seconds, bottle holders and time-keepers. Aleck Brewster, of New Orleans, was referee. Here are the particulars of the fight:

Promptly at 9 o'clock P. M. Frank opened the gate. He was closely followed by "Jimmy" Carroll, "Doc" O'Connell and James Robinson. At this time New Orleans, and particularly that portion of it in the neighborhood of the Olympic Club, looked like a fair day. Bettors were rife and Dempsey had the call. His followers were doomed to disappointment. Jack had counted without his host.

After the above-named gentlemen had entered the house, and when the crowd was howling for the appearance of the gladiators, Dempsey came in. He was closely followed by Jack McAniff, Gus Tuthill and Tom Maher. The men took their seats. Fitzsimmons had arrived with his friends.

The two pugilists faced each other, looked each other over, and then prepared to weigh. Fitzsimmons had been seen for the first time by his opponent, and even those who had been wagering their dust on Dempsey realized that he was a good "un."

A sport away back on the tier yelled:

"I'll bet $2,000 on Dempsey!"

There was an uproar of yells:

"Go soak your head!"

"Sit down!"

"Go smother yourself!"

The uproar was tremendous. The scene at the Tower of Babel would have had to take a back seat had it moved into New Orleans.

When Dempsey weighed he dropped the beam at 147½ pounds. Fitzsimmons watched the weighing closely. Fitz then jumped aboard the platform. He weighed 150½ pounds.

Then bets, which had, theretofore, been in favor of Dempsey, wafted around, breezed by the change of atmosphere superinduced by the appearance of Fitzsimmons. He was a fighter in all that applies to the term, and no mistake. Men with boodle endeavored to hedge.

Dempsey came to the front again in the betting when it was seen that Fitzsimmons was nervous. His muscles twitched and he was uneasy. Dempsey was as cool and collected as a girl who was about to attack her first beau and her first plate of ice cream.

Just before time was called Jack offered to bet $1,000 that he would win.

The crowd cheered.

"Haven't got the money," remarked Fitzsimmons, laconically.

Major Frank McLaughlin handed Jimmy Carroll the money, and the bet would have been made, but the Captain of Police made Carroll return the money. "No bets go," he shouted. Fitzsimmons then walked over and shook hands with Dempsey.

"May the best man win, Jack," he said.

"He will," was Dempsey's reply.

Gus Tuthill won the toss for choice of gloves, and, upon winning, selected what he thought was the best pair. They proved to be "Police Gazette" standard gloves.

The gloves looked too large in the eyes of some present, and they objected.

The police were called to the front, and the genial captain said:

"If they can hurt each other with those pillows I am mistaken."

Both men were then rubbed, and at 9:26 they shook hands.

Carroll refused to shake with McAniff.

Time was called at 9:28.

Dempsey looked like a light-weight beside his opponent.

Then they went at it.

ROUND 1.—Fitzsimmons at once began to force the fighting. He broke ground a second later and then rushed. He landed his right on Dempsey's neck, got away, and a second later put his right and left on Dempsey's face. Fitzsimmons rushed again, and Dempsey got to a clinch. He clinched twice more, on Fitzsimmons's lead, and finally got the big fellow on the ropes in his own corner and pounded him three good ones.

ROUND 2.—Acting upon Carroll's advice, Fitzsimmons assumed the aggressive. He landed his right on Jack's ear and galloped away like a kitten. Then Jack missed a heavy left-hand swing. Jack then sent his right to Fitzsimmons's head and landed there. Fitzsimmons put on a spurt and reached Jack's face with right and left, but not hard enough to do great damage. Just before the call of time Fitzsimmons sent a hard right hander on Jack's short ribs.

ROUND 3.—Fitzsimmons went to work at once; he began by landing with his left. Dempsey ducked and got away again. A moment later they got together, and then Fitzsimmons hit Dempsey an awful smash in the face and knocked him down. There was loud cheering. Dempsey got up, but was groggy. He fought wild at first, but during the rest of the round did nothing but endeavor to save himself. Fitzsimmons could not catch him, but followed him around the ring.

ROUND 4.—Both were good natured. Fitzsimmons began forcing it again. He seemed to be able to hit his man as often as he chose, but his blows were not heavy. He sent his right on Jack's face, and got away from a heavy swing. He then turned and got in a good one on Jack's nose. Dempsey got in two good blows, one on the neck with his right and one on the wind.

ROUND 5.—Fitzsimmons came right out for business. He got home on Dempsey's neck with a hard one. He followed it a moment later with another in the same place. Dempsey kept away, and in a good rally sent in two hot ones on Fitzsimmons's belly. In a rush, Dempsey fell to his knees, but clinched. Dempsey played for wind. The round was all in favor of Fitzsimmons. Dempsey closed the round with a hard one right in Fitzsimmons's stomach.

In rounds 6, 7 and 8 Fitzsimmons had decidedly the best of it.

ROUND 9.—Dempsey was in bad condition. His left eye looked sad. Fitzsimmons never let up. He rushed all the way through. Dempsey did little more than clinch, and on different occasions Fitzsimmons hit him in the stomach while they were together. Cries of foul from every side. Fitzsimmons now drove him all over the ring. Dempsey was bleeding from nose and mouth and he was groggy on his pins, and it looked as if he could not last the round. He did though, and was not so bad when he went to his corner.

ROUND 10.—Fitzsimmons walked over and looked as though he meant to finish his man. He landed a heavy right swing on Jack's neck, who did not seem to be able to reach him. Fitzsimmons planted both hands in Jack's wind in quick succession. Jack ran around and clung to his man to save himself. He was plainly out-classed; he was surely going, but he was game and made a grand rally. A right swing sent him down; he lay there for six seconds, then Fitzsimmons waited for a chance and gave Jack a hard one on the jaw.

ROUND 11.—A great many people thought it was as good as over and left the building. Fitzsimmons came out and asked Dempsey to quit. Dempsey crawled to his feet. Fitzsimmons gave him time to get on his feet and then hit him right and left. He fell in his corner and Fitzsimmons thought he had the fight won. He turned and went to his corner. Dempsey got to his feet and the gong sounded.

ROUND 12.—Fitzsimmons went in for a knock-out, and Jack was groggy. The long one sent his right to Jack's jaw. He fell, got up and was sent to the earth by that terrible right. Then Fitzsimmons swung his left, and Jack went down again; he got up and again was felled. Jack McAniff walked over and tried to induce Dempsey to stop, but he insisted on fighting, however, and during this argument time was called.

ROUND 13 AND LAST.—It was all day with Dempsey.

He started to spar with his man, but he was too tired even to stop the jabs which the wonderful foreigner aimed at him. Fitzsimmons's long right landed heavily on Jack's left ear. Dempsey staggered around the ring and fell in a heap. He soon arose and gave a heroic rally; it was ineffectual, however, for a fight left-hand jab on the chin knocked him spinning again. "He's out," everybody cried, but game Jack was on his feet again before eight seconds had elapsed. Fitzsimmons standing over him, ready to deliver a finishing punch, said, "Quit, Jack; I don't want to hurt you any more." Carroll twined his arms around Fitzsimmons's neck and kissed him, while the latter remarked: "Well, Jimmie, we won't starve this winter." As a rule, men who attend exhibitions of this kind are not easily affected, but when the "Nonpareil" went down for the last time "Dempsey's" as good as a dozen whipped men yet, "was the answer, but Dempsey was beaten. There remained, however, a faint hope. "Now, look out!" cries Fitzsimmons. He swung his right, the blow caught Dempsey just below the left ear, and he fell to the floor insensible, and a hundred men counted the seconds, and when ten was reached, Jack was still on his back. "Fitzsimmons wins," shouted the referee. Then a wild cheer went up for the winner, and Dempsey was carried to his corner by McAniff, and when his senses returned a half minute later, he wept like a child.

During the early part of the week delegation after delegation from almost every city in the Union had continued to arrive, and the hotels and private boarding houses were crowded to their utmost capacity. It was impossible to poke one's head out of doors without meeting some world-known sporting man. Such excitement in the sporting world has not existed in New Orleans since the memorable contest between Sullivan and Kilrain, on July 8, 1888, when the Crescent City was the centre of attraction and the point of departure for the field at Richburg, Miss.

It would require column upon column of this issue to present the names of the celebrities who arrived in town to witness the fight, and as space is precious just now, we have room but for a few. Next week we will endeavor to give the names of all those who were present.

Among the others on hand were the following well-known sporting men, who need no introduction to the public:

William E. Harding, of the POLICE GAZETTE, Frank Stevenson, Phil Dwyer, Edward H. (Snapper) Garrison, Steve Brodie, James Killoran of Troy, John Higgins and Alderman John Davey of Buffalo, Tom O'Brien of Syracuse, Bob Bright of Detroit, "Doc" O'Connell and Eddie Connelly of Boston, Mass., James Sweeney, Howe Hodgkins, John C. ### THE HISTORY OF THE MATCH.

Ever since Dempsey won the championship, rumormongers have been rife that there were pugilists in all parts of the country who were anxious to tackle him and wrest the laurels from his brow. The prominent athletic clubs throughout the country, realizing the fact that there was money in such a venture, began to bid for the exhibition.

A few months ago, when Dempsey was in this city, President Dick Roche, of the Puritan Club, announced that the directors of that organization had decided to offer a purse of $4,000 for a glove contest between the Nonpareil and the New Zealander. Two days later the Olympic Club, of New Orleans, offered $500 more. The Puritan Club raised the amount at this juncture to $5,500. This offer stood for some time and Dempsey declared that he was perfectly satisfied to box under these conditions. Jimmy Carroll, the light-weight, who was then, as he is now, looking after Fitzsimmons' interest, said that his man would not meet Dempsey in the East. Notwithstanding this declaration of Carroll's, the bidding went on and gradually the purse offered reached $7,500, this sum being named by both the Olympic and Puritan clubs.

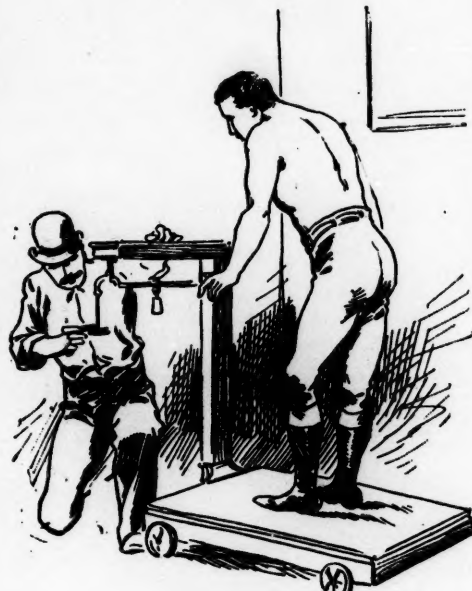

At about this time the prosperous Southern organization sent to this city R. M. Frank, with instructions to secure Dempsey's signature to articles of agreement, even if $10,000 had to be offered. Emissary Frank, during a stay of many weeks in this city, had many interviews with Dempsey, who did not appear to be in a great hurry to close the arrangements until all the bids were in. Frank named the big price and expected that this would surely tempt Dempsey. As soon as the Puritan's directors heard of the $10,000 offer they tacked on an additional $500 and a few days afterward this offer was increased to $12,000. Fitzsimmons declined, absolutely, to make any arrangements to box at the Long Island City Club and Dempsey then started for his home in Portland, Ore.

The Olympic Club carried on lengthy correspondence with him for weeks before he finally signed these articles, to which the name of Fitzsimmons had already been affixed:

We, the undersigned, Jno. E. Dempsey, of Portland, Oregon, and R. M. Fitzsimmons, of New Zealand, do hereby agree to engage in a glove contest to a finish, Marquis of Queensberry rules, before the Olympic Club, of New Orleans, on the night of January 14, 1891, at 9 o'clock sharp, for a purse of twelve thousand dollars ($12,000), of which the winner is to receive eleven thousand dollars ($11,000) and the loser the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000). The said contest to be with five-ounce gloves.

Official timekeeper to be selected by the club, the contestants reserving the right of selecting one timekeeper each to represent him.

The referee to be selected by the club, subject to the approval of the said Jno. E. Dempsey and R. M. Fitzsimmons. Both men to weigh in five minutes before the call of time at the ring side. Neither one to weigh over or above one hundred and fifty four pounds (154 pounds). To guarantee our good faith in carrying out the above, both as to weight and appearance at proper time, and place, we each hereby agree to post a forfeit of one thousand dollars ($1,000) in the hands of the officers of the Olympic Club, on or before November 20, 1890. It is understood that should either one of us fail to appear in the ring or weigh over 154 pounds, the one so doing shall forfeit to the other the amount of his deposit.

The anticipated meeting of the famed pugilists has been the topical subject of conversation and comment for months, as it was to be an all important contest. Thousands upon thousands of dollars had been wagered all over this country, and thousands upon thousands of pounds in European countries as to the result. In addition to the importance of the contestants in the pugilistic world, the purse to be contended for was the largest ever offered at a boxing match—namely, $12,000. In addition to the purse there was an outside wager between the men of $2,500 a side. Furthermore it was to be for the middle-weight championship of the world and for the new "Police Gazette" middle-weight belt, to be presented by Richard K. Fox.

Dempsey being the owner of the original middle-weight belt presented by Mr. Fox, having held it against all comers for the specified time, Richard K. Fox offered a new and more elegant and costly trophy as the emblem of the championship. These are the RULES GOVERNING THE "POLICE GAZETTE" NEW MIDDLE-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BELT.

RULE 1—All contests for the "Police Gazette" diamond belt shall be contended for according to rules mutually agreed upon.

RULE 2—The holder of the trophy shall be the recognized champion middle-weight pugilist of the world, and will be required to defend the trophy against all comers.

RULE 3—All matches for the belt shall be for no less a sum than $1,000 a side, or upward, at the option of the holder and the challenger.

RULE 4—The belt shall be subject to challenges from any pugilist in the world, but no challenges will be accepted unless a deposit of $250 is posted with a responsible person.

RULE 5—Challenges shall date from the date of their receipt by the stakeholder, and the holder of the belt will be in duty bound to arrange a match with the first challenger.

RULE 6—All contests shall take place within four months from the date of the receipt of challenge by the stakeholder.

RULE 7—The holder of the belt must contend for the belt every four months if challenged, and not more than three times in twelve months.

RULE 8—All contests for the belt must be contended for in the United States or Canada, not otherwise unless with the consent of the donor, and the holder of the trophy will have no power to select the place of meeting but will mutually agree with the challenger upon the selection of the place.

RULE 9—If the holder of the belt and the challenger cannot agree upon the place of meeting, the stakeholder will select the ground.

RULE 10—The belt shall become the personal property of any pugilist who wins it three times in succession or holds it three years against all comers.

RULE 11—The winner or holder of the belt must de-don prize ring rules, at Timaru, defeating him in three rounds. Then came his fights with Jack Murphy and Jim Crawford, both of which were fought under London prize ring rules. He defeated the former in four and the latter in three rounds, knocking them both out. After this he left New Zealand and went to Sydney, sparring for the first time there at Larry Foley's Athletic Hall, where he defeated Brinsmead, a heavy-weight, in two rounds. He weighed 170 pounds to Fitzsimmons' 148 pounds. The fact is he never fought at over 148 pounds until he came to the United States. He next defeated Jack Greentree, a middle-weight, at Foley's, in three rounds. Dick Sandall, who, after Fitzsimmons left New Zealand, had got to be amateur champion there, was the next one who wanted posit satisfactory security, or money, with Richard K. Fox for the safe-keeping of the same, and be prompt to return it to the stakeholder when called for.

RULE 12—The belt must be delivered to the stakeholder thirty days prior to a contest, and the holder refusing any challenge will forfeit all claims and rights to the trophy.

RULE 13—In all contests for the belt the final stakeholder shall act as or select the referee, with the mutual consent of the contracting parties.

There were many who said that the men would not meet, as it would be impossible for Fitzsimmons to train down to the required weight, viz., 154 pounds, but his friends claimed that he would, and Dempsey's adherents held that so anxious was the champion to meet Fitzsimmons he might close his eyes and waive a pound or so in order to prove that he was the better man.

The admirers of both Dempsey and Fitzsimmons pointed to the splendid records of their men, and for the purpose of enlightening the sport-loving public as to the deeds of the contestants, we present the following:

"BOB" FITZSIMMONS' RECORD.

Robert Fitzsimmons was born in Cornwall, England, and is twenty-eight years of age. Notwithstanding his place of birth he is generally classed as a New Zealander. His first appearance in the ring was at Jem Mace's amateur boxing tournament at Timaru, New Zealand, ten years ago. Mace was making a tour through the colonies. Fitzsimmons succeeded in knocking out four men that night, winning the amateur championship of New Zealand and a gold watch. The next year Mace visited New Zealand and gave another tournament. Fitzsimmons then knocked out five men in one night, sustaining his title of champion. After defeating the five men he put on the gloves with Herbert Slade; and to the surprise of everybody present bested him. After stopping Slade, Mace and to meet him. Fitzsimmons defeated him in four rounds. Then he defeated Bill Slavin, a brother of Frank Slavin.

Fitzsimmons then fought Eager, who recently fought a draw with Starlight, the colored middle-weight champion of Australia, and though he wore three-ounce gloves, while Fitzsimmons had on eight-ounce, "Fitz" beat him in three rounds. He defeated Conway, champion of Ballarat, in three rounds.

His next battle of importance was with Dick Ellis who was and is now considered a good one in Australia, he having fought three draws with Lang, the well-known Māori heavy-weight, two battles being under London rules and one under Queensberry. Ellis weighed 176 pounds, against his 148 pounds, but Fitzsimmons beat him in three rounds just the same. He next fought Jim Hall, champion middle-weight of Australia, for the championship, defeating him in five rounds. Then he fought Starlight, the colored middle-weight champion of Australia and champion of Queensland, knocking him out in nine rounds. His last fight in Australia was with Prof. West, a heavy-weight who used to exhibit through Australia, advertising to knock any man out in four rounds. Fitzsimmons knocked him out in two minutes.

Proceeding to San Francisco Fitzsimmons immediately got on a match with Billy McCarthy to fight at the California Athletic Club.

He fought McCarthy with but very little training, as he had been in the country only fourteen days when they met, knocking him out in nine rounds.

His last fight up to date was with Arthur Upham. He defeated him in five rounds at the Audubon Club, New Orleans.

RECORD OF JACK DEMPSEY.

Jack Dempsey, of Brooklyn, was born at the Curragh of Kildare, Ireland, on Dec. 15, 1862. The following is his record: Beat Edward McDonald, 27 rounds, 36 minutes, April 7, 1883; beat Jack Boylan, 23 rounds,

On April 16, 1886, Dempsey was presented by Richard K. Fox with the "Police Gazette" championship belt, which represented the middle-weight championship of America.

On Nov. 12, 1886, Jack Dempsey and Jack Burke fought at the Merchant's Pavilion, San Francisco, Cal. Ten rounds were fought and the battle ended in a draw.

Dempsey was challenged by Johnny Reagan to fight for $1,000 and the "Police Gazette" championship belt. The battle was fought near New York on Dec. 15, 1887. Dempsey won in 8 rounds.

Dempsey's next battle was with Dominick McCaffrey.

EXAMINING THE "POLICE GAZETTE" GLOVES.

It was decided at New Jersey, on Jan. 31, 1888. Ten rounds were fought and Dempsey was declared the winner.

Dempsey's next battle was with Prof. Mike Donovan, the teacher of the New York Athletic Club. It was a 6-round contest and was decided on Nov. 25, 1888. The contest ended in a draw.

On Aug. 27, 1889, Jack Dempsey and George Le Blanche fought for a purse of $5,500 in the California Athletic Club, at San Francisco, Cal. Dempsey in this battle lost the title of Nonpareil, Le Blanche defeating him in 32 rounds, lasting 2 hours and 7 minutes.

Dempsey's last battle was with Billy McCarthy, of Australia, formerly of England. They fought for a purse of $1,800 in the California Athletic Club, San Francisco, Cal., on February 18, 1890. Dempsey won after a long and stubborn battle which lasted 28 rounds and 1 hour and 51 minutes. He also fought a draw with Harry Force, 11 rounds, 50 minutes, Coney Island, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1883; fought a draw with Bob Turnbull, 8 rounds, 30 minutes, Nov. 25, 1883, at New York; fought a draw with Jimmy Ryan, 7 rounds, 30 minutes, at Philadelphia, Sept. 15, 1884; fought a draw with George Wilson, 4 rounds, 15 minutes, at Philadelphia, Dec. 15, 1884.

DEMPSEY'S ARRIVAL AT THE OLYMPIC CLUB.

Fitzsimmons were going to wind up the evening's entertainment with a friendly bout. They put on the gloves and shook hands, and were about commencing to spar when they were greeted with such a storm of hisses that Mace thought it would be better to take off the gloves. The audience thought that Mace was going to try to knock Fitzsimmons out, when in reality he only intended to show him a few points in boxing. All of these bouts were fought under the Marquis of Queensberry rules.

Fitzsimmons next fought Arthur Cooper, under Lon-

TWO KINDS OF LOVE

Specimens of Pure and Impure Passion.

A SHORT COURTSHIP.

She Was So Near and Yet So Far.

SKIPPED TO MASSACHUSETTS.

A Watertown, N. Y., Villain Cooped.

NORA'S AIM WAS GOOD.

This is the season of the year when young folk who are in love feel as if they should get closer and closer to each other and play huggy-buggy and kissy-kissy when the old folk are doing the sleep act. There is no necessity for having more than one chair in the room. A chair is preferable to a tele-a-tele or sofa, for the latter is sure to become lopsided where courting is in progress, and, where the girl is luscious and the fellow of a yearning disposition, in nine cases out of ten the sofa is sure to become lumpsided, and the tele-a-tele will inevitably assume a camel-like appearance, due to the desire on the part of the lovers to bite each other or swap spits, and this they can't do if they are several yards or so apart. The same rule applies to old lovers.

WON IN TWENTY MINUTES.

It is safe to say that neither lounge, chair or tele suffered in the brief courtship of Alexander Caseman and Mrs. Mary Reed, for they didn't have a chance to lallygag or spoon. The courtship took the form of lustiness right up to the hilt, and it took only twenty minutes for Mr. Caseman to get there, as the wooing and winning was done in that brief space of time.

Mr. Caseman is a wealthy farmer and business man, and a respected citizen of Lima, O. Some time ago his wife, an estimable lady, died, and upon her deathbed she and her husband talked over his future. The domestic life of the two had been all that could have been wished, and desiring that his wife should die happy Mr. Caseman promised her that should he ever marry again he would take her sister, the pretty widow, Mary Reed, who resided in Shelbyville, Ind., as his second helpmeet. And Mrs. Caseman passed away.

True to his promise Mr. Caseman recently arrived in Shelbyville and at once repaired to the home of his sister-in-law. Mrs. Reed was not in the best of circumstances, and when Mr. Caseman arrived he found her at the washbasin. She looked extremely neat and lovable and he at once proposed and was accepted. Within twenty minutes they were made one.

In this case, at least, the course of true love did run smooth—as soft soap could make.

SO NEAR AND YET SO FAR.

Now for something young and fresh. This is the tale of the striking of a snag by true love, and the true lovers are somewhat more youthful than those referred to in the foregoing chapter. It is a case of elopement, and as the young lady interested is, or was, named Near, which gives the town jostler the opportunity of working off a gag about "So Near and yet so far."

The escapade originated in Thompsonville, Conn., and at last accounts was spreading wedding-tourward throughout the country.

One Saturday morning recently Miss Mary Near, the pretty nineteen-year-old daughter of Charles Near, of Thompsonville, left her home, saying that she was going to visit friends who lived a short distance outside the town. As she did not return search was made for her, and it was learned that the girl had not been to see her friends, but had boarded a train for Springfield, Mass., and was in the company of Charles McNemey, thirty years of age, who lives in Thompsonville. In Springfield the girl's father learned that the couple had been married and had gone to Holyoke, where the groom has friends. McNemey has been courting Miss Near for two years. The girl's parents objected to the match because of McNemey's religion.

CHARLEY AND MARY LEAVE TOWN.

He is a Catholic, while the Near family are strong Methodists. The girl, however, met her lover clandestinely. Of late the girl's parents have seen but little of McNemey, and it was supposed Mary's love for him had been conquered.

McNemey has written to a friend saying that after a two weeks' trip he and his wife will return to Thompsonville to live. He is employed in the carpet mills there.

Bully for Mac!

EUCHRED POPPER AND MOMMER.

The elopement craze appears to have been contagious in Connecticut, for here are the enlightening details of another one, in which Edward Glasheen and pretty Mary Condren snuggled up to each other for better or for worse.

Keep the lines uncrossed and the chewing gum out of your mouth, Central, while I twitter my little prayer that it may be for better and not for worse.

The party of the first part, Edward Glasheen, is a popular and highly respected young man of Portland, Conn., and, being a gallant, he loved pretty Mary Condren, of the ditto place. This was not strange, for Mary was a chunky little armful of sweetness and good enough to adorn a millionaire's home. But Mary's popper and mommer objected.

They had no especial objection to Glasheen personally, but they didn't want Mary to marry anyone until they gave the word "Go!"

Mary pretended to acquiesce in her parents' policy, and she and Edward appeared to have nothing to do with each other. But a few days ago both disappeared, and one evening the Rev. T. R. Sweeney, of St. Mary's Church, dropped into the home of the worrying old folks and calmly informed them that Mary and Edward were man and wife and comfortably settled in Philadelphia. The reverend father said the couple called on him at the church one evening, said they loved each other intensely, and wanted to be married right away, without waiting for banns to be published. Father Sweeney yielded to their solicitation, and after he had tied the marriage knot they started at once for the Quaker City. "They are very happy now," added the priest, "and I have come, representing them and pleading for reconciliation."

But the old folk are not reconciled as yet.

Drat the old folk!

But, hold on, happy ones, they'll come back!

A VILLAIN IN THE TOILS.

All of the above-mentioned lovers deserve credit for bringing their pain to a felicitous end, but who will say the same for this villain, who has recently been indicted by the Jefferson County, N. Y., grand jury. He was in danger of lynching when he was captured, and it is lucky for him that he did not fall into the hands of the excited populace.

Drayton Hungerford is a prominent, popular and respected citizen of Watertown, N. Y. A man, or rather fiend, named William Reed, was formerly in his employ. Mr. Hungerford has a ten-year-old daughter, who is very pretty and rather over-developed for one of her age.

The girl was visiting a neighbor living in the suburbs on the night in question, and at about midnight Reed appeared at the house in a sleigh, and said that the child's grandmother had died and her mother was dying and calling for her child. She was awakened, dressed and bundled up and started off with Reed. Soon after starting she became afraid of him and attempted to jump out of the cutter, but he seized her arm and held her, telling her that if she cried out he would kill her, and that she must go with him.

They travelled thus to the city, and through the city by back streets to the country again, where, about a mile from town, he found a place suited to his purpose. He never released his hold on the girl's arm, but stepped from the cutter, took a lap robe and blanket from it, pulled the girl out, and then started the stolen horse toward the city. It was not yet daylight, and no one saw him as he dragged the girl into a barn and up the stairs into a hay loft, where he spread the blanket and robe and prepared to spend the night. The girl was frightened into silence by threats of death, and by the rough hands of the brute occasionally clutching her throat. In the morning when the farmer came to feed his stock he kept her silent by whispered threats of instant death and by frequent choking. They were there all day without food and with garments soaked by the rain which had fallen during their trip the night before.

When darkness came he led the child out of the barn, and walked with her down the road into the city and along the street where her grandfather lives, going almost to the house. With a final threat that if she told any one of what he had done he would kill her, he left her and ran away.

Reed was finally captured, held for the grand jury and was indicted by that body for the heinous crime of which he is accused.

BETRAYALS ARE COSTIVE.

There is one man in Fort Worth, Tex., who, hereafter, will be a little careful how he chucks himself into the affections of the fairest, and that man is Ben McCullough. McCullough will probably die. This is why:

Nora Gilbert, a cute girl of twenty-one years, and McCullough had been very intimate for many years, and a year and a half ago she gave birth to a boy, which she charges upon McCullough.

On New Year's night McCullough was married to one Pearl Redford, who a fortnight previously had been granted a divorce from her husband, Greer Trimble. When Nora Gilbert heard of this she determined that McCullough should never live with his new wife, and at noon that day she placed a cocked revolver in a paper bag and started out to look for him. She went to his home, where she found his new wife, to whom she spoke friendly, and proceeding thence encountered McCullough near by on the street. She talked with him a while, and as he turned away she drew the revolver from the bag and commenced firing, the muzzle of the gun being almost against his clothes. The first two shots entered his back, between the shoulders, not an inch apart.

He ran and she pursued, firing two more shots, which pierced his clothing. He stumbled upon his hands and knees. She stood over him, snapping the weapon again and again, but the chambers were empty. A policeman carried her away. She has not been allowed bail pending the result of the wounds. She takes the matter coolly, complaining because the revolver did not contain more charges, so that she could have finished the work on the spot, and says that if he recovers and she gets out of prison she will make another attempt.

Ben McCullough is a widely-known railroad engineer. But has lately been running a saloon in Fort Worth. He was mentioned as a candidate for City Marshal at the spring election.

There are five cases—three of pure and two of impure love or passion; which are the more commendable? You pay your money and you take your choice. Choose the latter and there is every possibility that you will spend your honeymoon in the jug.

TOMMY RATS.

OUR PALATIAL OFFICES.

Our business offices have taken on a new dress and they now look as bright as the bright New Year. During the seven months' absence of Richard K. Fox abroad, the carpenters, decorators, and other artists in workmanship were busily engaged in building surprises for him, and now we have offices which for their sumptuousness and palatialness are second to none in the world. Out-of-town visitors are startled at the dazzling appearance of the suite of rooms in the business department, and they are well worth a call to those who desire to catch a glimpse of fairyland on an earthly and go ahead basis. Such visitors are always welcome.

In this connection the New York News of Dec. 23 has this:

"Richard K. Fox arrived on the Cunarder Umbria, with Superintendent Murray. He was agreeably surprised at the improvements that have been made in the interior of the Police Gazette building, which is now one of the handsomest business offices in New York."

The observant Newsman, the organ of the publishers and newsdealers of the United States, comments thus:

"The most artistic and tastefully furnished publishing offices in America can be found on Franklin Square, New York. During Mr. Fox's absence abroad, the business manager, Mr. C. Clarke, has been busy remodeling and decorating the first floor, which contains the offices. The changes reflect much credit on Mr. Clarke."

FROM OUR SOUTH AFRICAN CORRESPONDENT.

The following chit-chat comes from our South African correspondent:

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 11, 1890.

RICHARD K. FOX—Sport here is almost dormant. Bank failures still continue to be in fashion. Three banks have collapsed within the last three months. Another is expected to follow suit daily. Eight splendid thoroughbred horses arrived in the colony last week from England. A boxing match is on the tapis. Couper has been blowing his horn in England. We have a dozen men here that could give the so-called champion of South Africa fits. Could you not send us out a good middle or heavy-weight boxer? He would assuredly make his pile in a very short time. We expect two crack trotting horses next week from England. The weather here is extremely hot. Any wicked sporting man dying would do well to take a pair of blankets with him the change would be so sudden. Your paper is eagerly looked for here each week. More sporting items next mail.

Editor Cape Town Register.

YOUNG DOW KICKED, TOO.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Clarence M. Dow, the nineteen-year-old son of C. H. Dow, president of the Commercial National Bank, of Denver, Col., was married a few days ago to Millie Price, the danseuse and high kicker of the "Natural Gas" Company. The couple engaged rooms in the Windsor Hotel, in Denver. About midnight of the second night after the marriage their room door was thrown open and Mrs. Dow rushed down the hall, clad in her night robe, screaming murder. Her husband followed, flourishing a revolver. He then returned to his room and threatened to shoot himself, but the weapon was taken away before any damage could be done.

JEAN WILLIAMS.

[WITH PORTRAIT.]

We reproduce on the dramatic page of this issue a portrait of Mr. Jean Williams, manager of Hammerstein's Columbus theatre, this city. Mr. Williams has been connected with the theatrical business since a boy, and has by his business ability and pluck gained a position in the front ranks of the profession. He is not only a shrewd manager, but also a good actor, being at one time a member of Fanny Davenport's Company. It is largely due to the energetic work of Williams that the Columbus theatre has met with such a success.

TRIED TO KILL HER.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

George Henry Raymond, of No. 846 Madison street, Wilmington, Del., and his wife, Lizzie, who have lived apart from each other since last September, met a few days ago in Squire Sarsee's office to settle their affairs. Raymond demanded of his wife permission to see their children. She refused, whereupon Raymond struck his wife a blow in the face and then over the head with a heavy cane. He was overpowered and arrested. Mrs. Raymond is badly hurt.

KIDNAPED HIS CHILD.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Mrs. John Conrad, of Taylorsville, Ill., who for some time past has not lived with her husband, was recently driving in a buggy with her mother and three-year-old daughter, when they met Conrad in the road, who attempted to take away the child from his wife. He was beaten off by the ladies with a whip. Some days later Conrad drove to his wife's home in a buggy and kidnaped the child. The police are now on his trail.

A DARING ROBBERY.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Three burglars broke into the store of A. A. Stevens, in Hayes, Ill., recently with the intention of blowing open the safe. Fearing the explosion would attract attention, they procured a truck and hauled the safe a half mile into the country where it was opened with dynamite. They found only a small sum of money. The police of Tuscola, Ill., are looking for the thieves.

JUMPED A "JUMPER."

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

In Essex, Conn., a double ripper that was carrying a dozen people down a hill in the valley recently, leaped eight feet over a "jumper" and was overturned. Miss Lucy Everett, one of the party, was badly bruised and her arm broken.

SIGHTS AND SAYINGS.

We'll swing around the circle a bit to-day. We'll chat about New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Frisco, four cities that beat strongest with the throbs of dramatic life.

More than ever New York gives the cue to the dramatic doings of the United States. It is here that most of the new plays are first produced. It is here that foreign actors congregate. It is here that exotic tenors, sopranos, contraltos, buffos, basses, first drink their beer and their chianti in this country. It is here foreign costumes are taxed. It is here artists from abroad do their first swearing. New York is the most cosmopolitan city in the world.

Aronson, Frohman, Daly, Harrigan, Palmer, Gilmore, Miner, Hill, Sanger, Pastor, Jacobs, Murtha, Hammerstein, Rosenquest, Donaldson, control things dramatic. The theatres of Gotham are, most of them, insecure, the dressing rooms scandalously inadequate, the prices high, and advance agents truthful. New York likes foreign actors, Irving, Bernhardt, Terry, Patti, Willard, Kendal, Carmencita, Otero, and foreign actors, when they get home, reciprocate the compliment by saying New York is the dirtiest, the most money-grubbing and the most purse-proud city in the world. "New York," said Theo when here, "is a place where there is so little musical culture that men don't even whistle straight." Stanton, of the Metropolitan, says New York is musical, but he has to say it pretty loud, else he'll be drowned by the chatter of some of the low-necked, scrawny-backed box-holders of his opera house.

I suppose you know the latest news floating around Gotham. Miner's Fifth Avenue Theatre burnt and being rebuilt. Charley White, the minstrel, is dead. Barrett's "Ganelon" is a financial fizzle. Rosina Vokes is doing well in "Silver Shield" at the Madison Square Theatre. Sadie Martinot is driving a fine span of horses. I hear the "Babes in the Wood" are thriving at Niblo's.

And Horace McVicker got off a bon mot when he heard that Herrman's Theatre escaped injury during the conflagration.

"That ought to settle the fact that Herrman's Theatre has no draught," said McVicker. "You can't even draw a fire there."

Boston, which first sat upon the "Clemenceau Case" of Dumas and then rushed to see it, has moral spasms and fantastic fads. Boston is responsible for Mansfield and Ibsen, both cranks. John Stetson is the richest manager there. R. M. Field is the most bloated. Rich and Harris are a strong team. Keith is the Tony Pastor of the Hub. They used to prohibit stage plays in Boston a hundred years ago. They didn't even tolerate fiddlers. Clyde Fitch would have been tarred and feathered for foppery. Jack Crabtree would have been arrested for swearing. Eugene Tompkins would have been scourged for looking at the girls through eye glasses.

Boston, like New York, is fond of foreigners. Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau see to it that Boston gets them. There are more music stores, drunks, music teachers, bean hasheries and art classes in the Hub than in Gotham. But New York has the call for theatrical novelties. Charles Fechter, introduced by Dickens, used to be an idol in Boston, and Laurence Barrett is still. Salvini was toasted at all the clubs, and Fanny Kemble and Helena Modjeska had sonnets written to them. Jansen and Cayvan first exposed themselves to Bostonese audiences.

But that's neither here nor there.

Mary Shaw met Eben Plympton, late leading man to Julia Marlowe, the other day, rushing for a train.

"Hello, Plym, where are you rushing to?"

"My country place."

"What do you call it; where is it?"

"It's in the suburbs," answered Plympton. "I call it Insulington because I bought it with the money I earned while bearing the insult of acting with Marlowe!"

When Philadelphia has seen a play, it sits down on a park bench next morning and slowly studies the play bill to learn what it was all about. Philadelphia never enjoys a run. "The play has had a good walk." That's the wrinkle there. Gilmore, Kelly, Nixon & Zimmerman, Fleischman, all come to New York for novelties, but swear by Philadelphia. Bradenburgh comes to Gotham every three weeks and rakes in the shekels over there. Philadelphia is famous for pepper pots and comic operas. They believe in protection of home industries. Carnecross and Dumont manufacture their jokes. Francis Wilson is their pet comedian.

John Rogers, lately husband of Minnie Palmer, with whom, as you know, he had a row on account of her mother, stopped at the Opera House, Philadelphia, the other night, and as he passed in asked Dick Zimmerman, the doorkeeper, what was being played.

"Is Marriage a Failure?" remarked Zimmerman.

"Yes, I guess it is," quickly replied Rogers, "if you have too much mother-in-law."

Chicago looks at shows through telescopes instead of opera glasses. It likes everything big. Its theatres are big, numerous, roomy, and modern. The most artistic home product of Chicago are the lobsters broiled by Rector. Chicago is in a hurry. Henderson is its favorite burlesque purveyor. Hamlin writes its farce comedies with the aid of Paul Potter. Thomas is going to try and educate it musically. Will Davis and John Havili run popular houses. Emma Abbott, who died last week with almost a million, is the artistic quintessence production of the pork-slaughtering metropolis. Abbott had all the dash, business, and all of Chicago. You know how she got an introduction to Patti? Abbott called on Patti and Patti said she wasn't in. With the persistency of a book agent Abbott sent in word by the maid that she wanted her signature for a charity fair and then coolly followed the maid. Patti was sitting there combing her hair. Abbott put a blank card down and handed her diva a pen which lay on a table. "Please sign," said Abbott. While Patti signed Abbott let loose a cadezza from "Rigolette" or something. Patti looked up in astonishment. "You can sing, can't you?" said Patti. "A little," said Abbott. The two women had a talk and the result was Patti introduced Abbott to Gye and Mapleson, and Abbott died worth half a million. "Chicago," said Sarah Bernhardt, "is not a city. It's a railroad station."

SAN FRANCISCO.

Was Bernhardt wrong? Frisco, which produced two such theatrical lights as Harry Mann, who was never known to treat, and Charley Locke, who was never known to cheat, creates little that is news, but gets the best of anything that's produced elsewhere in the country. Frisco enjoys itself at Cafe Riche and Charley Hoyt writes about it. There is assimilation in its mild, balmy air. Frisco is genial, worldly wise, loves equally a good boxing match and good war drama. Ben Teal, Mabel Bert.

Helen Dauvray, Archie Gunter, Annie Pixley, Charley Schroeder, Oscar Weil, Sylvia Gerrish, Clifford Schmidt, May Wilkes come from the City of the Golden Gate, and some of them brought more brass than gold east with them. May Yohe, of the doubtful contralto, made her most brilliant triumphs in Frisco. Millie Price, the fickle-haired siren, who recently captured a silly eighteen-year-old boy, son of a rich banker in Colorado, will doubtless be toasted by all the dudes of Frisco. Millie Price was a kind of half-hearted success at Koster & Bial's, New York, when Donnelly & Girard engaged her to succeed Myra Goodwin, a soubrette, who accidentally took too much moxie, and now Millie Price has scooped in a boy and a million.

Frisco has always been a pet city of the gay and penniless chorus. All the old timers of the consulship of Eduardus Elusus Rice recall pleasant days and nights there. Ruth Stetson, Mollie Fuller, Maude Waldemere, Cora Tinnie, Mae Branson, Lila Blow, Lulu Tabor, Emma Hanley, can tell you many a piquant tale about Frisco.

Porter Ashe was for a long time the pet of the ballet and chorusdom out there. A wit, a sport, an epicure, Porter Ashe could be sarcastic as well as generous.

"She's so awkward," he said of a certain short-petted siren one evening. "I think she must have two left hands!"

WILLIAM M'WILLIAM.

[WITH PORTRAIT.]

William McWilliam is a gentleman whose name is well-known in the wheeling world, and who is probably one of the best authorities on all matters connected with the sport and trade of cycling. By birth Mr. McWilliam is a Scotchman, for he was born in Banffshire on Sept. 21, 1856.

On July 31, 1886, he established the Sewing Machine and Cycle News, which was very successful. He was also the originator and organizer of the first sewing machine exhibition ever held, and which proved a tremendous success. It took place at the Royal Aquarium, London, England, and was attended by manufacturers from all parts of the world. He was afterward invited to organize similar exhibitions in Paris, and in Boston, U. S. A. It is almost entirely owing to the untiring exertions of Mr. McWilliam in initiating such exhibitions, and to his methods of advertising, that American makers of sewing machines owe the reputation they have established in England.

Simultaneously with the Sewing Machine and Cycle News, he had established the Music Hall and Theatre Review, of which he is still one of the proprietors, the other being Mr. Tom Merry, the celebrated cartoonist, with whom Mr. McWilliam a short time ago entered into partnership. The journalistic career of Mr. McWilliam has been marked by a policy of outspoken criticism upon all matters on which he has been called to give an opinion.

MOLLIE THOMPSON.

[WITH PORTRAIT.]

On our dramatic page this week smiles the radiant face of Mollie Thompson, one of the most prominent soubrettes in the country. Miss Thompson, who is a daughter of John "On Hand" Thompson, was born in Baltimore, Md., and has been on the stage since her fifth year. Her versatility is extraordinary. She sings, acts, dances, rides, plays the banjo, thrums the piano and turns flips. Her work with Barnum's Circus, with "The Pair of Jacks," and with "The Hustler," has given Miss Thompson an established and enviable position among footlight favorites.

ACTING IN EARNEST.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Miss Clyde Raymond, an actress, recently attempted to end her life by shooting herself on the stage of the Comique Theatre, Butte, Mont. She was playing the leading role in an emotional drama in which she uses a pistol. When the curtain was rung down on the last act she turned to a friend, said: "Good-night and goodbye," placed the pistol to her side and fired. As she pulled the trigger some one jostled against her, causing the bullet to miss her heart and enter her arm, making a painful but not a serious wound.

EDWARDS AND KIRKE.

[WITH PORTRAITS.]

Schnitz Edwards, who was a long time one of the best pantomime comedians with the Hanlons, and Charley Kirke, who is now the leading fun-maker with Jarbeau, made a big hit as two Dutch sheriffs in the burlesque "Hendrik Hudson." We reproduce their portraits in the characters on our dramatic page for the benefit of our thousands of readers.

THEY COULDN'T CROSS.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Harvey Taylor and Miss Newry were married in Clark County, Ind., recently, by Justice Weir. They were on one side of Blue Lick Creek, while their parents, who objected to the marriage, were on the other, but the rains had swollen the stream, thus preventing the parents from crossing to prevent the nuptials.

JOE MCAULIFFE RETURNS.

He and Billy Madden Are at Home Again.

WILLING TO FIGHT ANYBODY.

Joe McAuliffe, the big California pugilist, and manager Billy Madden, arrived from England, on the steamer Britannic, Jan. 9. They drove immediately to this office, where they spent the afternoon with Richard K. Fox, Dave Holland, the representatives of the press and a few friends. McAuliffe said: "My defeat by Slavin has not killed my spirit. I am as anxious to fight to-day as I was before I left for England seven months ago. I want to have a chance to redeem myself. I will meet any man in the world for a purse or a private wager. I am not rich, but those who know me best will back me. Richard K. Fox, who defrayed all the traveling and legal expenses of Madden and myself while in Europe, has not lost confidence in me, and will back me for any amount against any man that cares to meet me. I would like to have a chance at Corbett, Kilrain, Jackson or Godfrey, or in fact any heavy-weight that wants to fight can have a chance if he will apply at the office of Richard K. Fox."

"I have been informed that Sullivan has retired, consequently I will not worry him with a challenge. If, however, he changes his mind in the future he will find me perfectly willing to meet him. I shall stay in New York for several months, or until I redeem myself, for I would not care to venture back to California with the stigma of defeat resting upon me. I will get on a fight or boxing contest with some one at the earliest possible date."

When asked if he would challenge the winner of the Kilrain-Godfrey battle, McAuliffe retorted: "I can't wait a month or two for a battle. I want to fight right off. I must lick some one soon or quit the business. I wish to say to all the American newspapers that the members of the Ormonde and Pelican clubs of London are the best and truest I have yet come in contact with. I was feted and lionized just as much as if I had won. Lords Lonsdale, De Clifford and Esme Gordon, the Marquis of Queensberry, Richard K. Fox and Messrs. Flemming, Atkinson, Cockburn, Pony Moore, Charley Mitchell, Frank P. Slavin, Charles Parsons, Jack Lewis, Tony Sage, of Dublin; A. E. Welles, the Earl of Caledon, all helped to make my stay in London a pleasant one, and to all of them I return sincere thanks."

Madden, resplendent in a glossy new tile and a top coat that would make even Berry Wall turn green with envy, when asked about his trip said: "I agree most cordially with what McAuliffe says regarding our reception in England. Why, I thought we were in America at times, so generously were we treated. I think of staying here for some time to come. I shall assist McAuliffe in his endeavors to get on another match, and I hope to be able to accomplish this in a few days or a week at most. I do not think that McAuliffe's defeat at the hands of Slavin should militate against him. He is just as eager to fight as ever, and will redeem himself in the eyes of Americans, provided he gets a chance. I am commissioned by Slavin and his backer, Arthur Cockburn, to make a match with Sullivan on any terms the latter chooses to dictate. Slavin wants to fight, and there is no one of his weight or calibre in England that will tackle him. Slavin is very anxious to meet Sullivan, and Cockburn is equally as anxious to back him. Slavin will bet $5,000 that he will knock Sullivan out in 6 rounds. The Australian also wants a go at Corbett."

"I shall begin work to get on a match for Slavin with either Corbett or Sullivan. I have also instructions from Charley Mitchell to make another match for him against Sullivan. Mitchell is thoroughly enraged over the way in which Sullivan talks about their fight in France. Sullivan has repeatedly said that Mitchell kept running away from him. To prove that he did not Mitchell offers to fight Sullivan with skin-tight gloves in a 12 foot ring for $12,000 a side. I am authorized to make the match, and will do so if possible."

FROZEN TO DEATH.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Two brothers named Bell, aged twenty-two and nine years, and a sister nineteen years old, living near Medicine Lodge, Kan., recently attended a meeting some distance from their home. A blizzard arose as they started for home. They became lost in the storm and took refuge in a canyon. The two brothers were frozen to death. The girl was found by searchers after wandering about for thirty-six hours. She was badly frozen.

MAY RESULT FATALLY.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Miller, residing on the banks of Ten Mile Creek, in Tyler county, near Wheeler, W. Va., quarreled a few days ago and agreed to fight it out in Mrs. Wilson's kitchen. Each was armed with a butcher knife. There were no spectators to the affair, but both women were badly cut. When found both were on the floor, too weak from the loss of blood to move. Mrs. Wilson may die.

SAVED BY HER CORSET.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Frank H. Mandeville stole into Mrs. Millie Shaw's room in the Roberts Block, Los Angeles, Cal., a few days ago. When Mrs. Shaw entered he fired three shots at her. Two of the bullets struck her corset steels and glanced off. The other missed her. Mandeville locked himself in the room and ended his life as the police broke in. He had been paying attention to Mrs. Shaw.

TERRORIZED BY A THIEF.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Mrs. Edward Morrey, of Bath, Me., a few days ago had occasion to go down in the cellar of her house. A man was concealed under the stairs. The intruder knocked the lady down, bound her hands and feet, gagged her with a towel and threatened to kill her with a cold chisel if she did not keep quiet. He then searched the house for valuables, but found nothing.

SEVERAL LIVELY BATTLES.

Australian Pugilism Looming Up Grandly.

BATTLES OF THE BIG 'UNS.

JEM FOGARTY DEFEATED BY JOE CHOYNSKI.

Our regular correspondent at Sydney, N. S. W., sends the following details of the battle between Jan Fogarty of Sydney, and Joe Choynski of San Francisco, Cal., fought at Sydney on Nov. 24, 1890.

The proceedings opened with the appointment of officials. Mr. George Seale was chosen as referee, and Mr. Lawson time-keeper. As the men stepped into the ring Fogarty scaled 12 stone 5 pounds, and Choynski an even 12 stone. This gave the Australian a considerable advantage in weight, but those who knew the game were more impressed by the symmetrical proportions of the Yankee, whereas Fogarty looked very much upon the big side.

The men faced each other for the battle, and they had no sooner started than it was at once seen that better training and greater skill and finer proportion were more than a match for the novice's slighted exterior.

Time after time Choynski punished his opponent severely on the face, his longer reach enabling him to knock his man about as he pleased.

The monotonous turn which the proceedings had taken robbed the fight of all interest, for it was seen that the American had the measure of his man and would soon bring matters to a crisis.

However, Fogarty stood up very gamely and faced his man round after round, receiving the most severe punishment.

In the fourth round Choynski, by a series of telling strokes, one of them stretching the Australian's arm on the stage.

While he was laid out this way, and on Fogarty retreating to his corner his seconds saw it was hopeless to continue the struggle, and they threw up the sponge.

This was the signal for loud hooting and groans from the backers of the beaten pugilist. In the expectation that had taken place before the fight, notwithstanding that Choynski was the favorite, the local man was naturally well backed, and great was the clamor of his admirers that he had given them such a poor show for their money.

In response to loud calls to explain his conduct, Fogarty came to the front of the arena and told the audience that he had no possible chance in the fight. Choynski had too long a reach, and he was never able to get near him.

The American showed great cleverness throughout the fight and fought with remarkable coolness and good humor. Fogarty's terrible right jawbreaker, about which we have heard so much, were in this instance of no avail, Choynski ending them with the shableness of a monkey.

Great admiration was expressed for the tricky fighting of the victor, and there is little doubt that an effort will be made during his stay in Australia to match him with some of the best men of his weight in the colonies.

One lesson of the contest is that Fogarty is not the game-headed bruiser that his friends believed him to be. He frequently funk the abounding so freely bestowed on him by his opponent, and was ironically forced as he avoided the American's well aimed blows.

The match was a great disappointment, and Fogarty has lost in reputation what it will take him some time to retrieve.

GODDARD TOO MUCH FOR CURRAN.

Joe Goddard, the Barrier champion, and Billy Curran, fought on Nov. 15, 1890, in the Melbourne Athletic Club, Australia, for £200. Curran had Peter Newton, Jim Hall and J. Barnett behind him. As he sat in his chair with his coat around him, he seemed ill at ease. The Barrier champion was looked after by his brother and Jack Marshall, his trainer. Mr. W. Power was referee, and Messrs. Biscoe and Dougherty the timekeepers; the latter gentleman undertaking the ten seconds. Right from the start it was seen that Curran had not a ghost of a show. His weight had been returned at 11 stone 3 pounds; that of Goddard at 12 stone 10 pounds. But it is a query whether Curran was not many pounds lighter. The latter made a very feeble attempt, never once straightening his arms, and it took Joe all his time to keep from hitting his opponent. But even when it came to sparing Goddard proved himself far the cleverer boxer. Once Curran made a show of countering. But Joe crossed him, quickly caught him on the side of the face with a right open-handed slap, and down came Curran, prone on the stage. Two rounds and a half were boxed, during which, had Goddard not displayed a manliness that won him many friends and great approbation, the contest would have been a farce in which his opponent would have played the principal part. The spectators began to hold their breath for fear Goddard might hit out, if only by accident. But Peter Newton dispelled all fears by exercising his common sense and throwing up the towel on behalf of his principal—an action that won Peter a hearty round of applause.

SINNOTT DROPPED BY WILLIAMS.

Tommy Williams and H. Sinnott fought according to "Police Gazette" rules for £30, £25 to the winner, at the Melbourne Athletic Club, Australia, on Nov. 15. Peter Newton and Jack Barnett had charge of the Carlton lad, whilst Hunt and Smith looked after the South Melbourne representative. The contestants' respective weights were: Williams, 10 stone 6 pounds; Sinnott, 10 stone 12 pounds.

In the fourth round Williams opened fire with a left facer, and followed it up with a right blunder. In trying to introduce the left a second time, Williams left himself open, and Sinnott put in a good right under the ear. Sinnott then sailed in, and Williams being eager for the fray a ding-dong rally ensued. Both lads kept left and right going, which created great excitement. Sinnott was countering strongly, but lacked precision with the right, whilst Williams was using both hands with effect. Two straight lefts on the face sent Sinnott back a pace or two. Following his man up Williams just managed to escape a powerful right hook. Tommy jumped in close, and drove Sinnott on the ropes. In attempting to break away Sinnott dropped his right hand and lowered his shoulder. This gave Williams a clear shot for the jaw. He availed himself of the opening, and planting the right fist on the jaw, dropped Sinnott, and burst up the show, the South Melbourne lad failing to respond to the call of time.

CORBETT MAY MEET JACKSON.

Notwithstanding the fact that Jim Corbett, the California pugilist, had announced his willingness and anxiety to meet Peter Jackson, his father placed an embargo on the proposed contest, and there was every likelihood that the affair wouldn't pan out. The following letter from the senior Corbett changes the phase of matters, and Jim and Peter may meet at an early date:

To the POLICE GAZETTE.

"So much adverse comment has been raised through the position I took regarding my son, James Corbett, meeting Peter Jackson in a boxing contest before the California Athletic Club, and so many and bad things have been said and insinuated, that I am constrained to forego my principles for the sake of my son's reputation, as thoroughly adverse as I am to his adopting professional pugilism as a means of livelihood. I therefore beg leave through your columns to rescind my former declaration that he should meet Jackson and to add my consent to a match at such time as the parties concerned may see fit to make it. I trust you may let me say a few words in addition. I think among those who know me and my boy best it is scarcely necessary to say how unjust are the rumors concerning any collusion between us for the purpose of making a 'show' at such a match to end the combination with which he is traveling. So much for that. As to the matter of Jim's personal courage, which has been more or less impugned, I think I am safe in saying as his father that such a charge reflects more on men who make it than on the man against whom it is made. Such reports before he fought Choynski forced me into consenting to the match. Despite this fact Jim made one of the hardest battles in the history of the ring, and fought with practically two broken hands, making every lick a living torture. I have taken the advice of the best men in the Olympic and California Clubs in this matter as well as other friends, and have reached my final decision after much thought, embodying as it does a sacrifice of principle. Yours very truly,

P. J. CORBETT.

O'CONNELL WHIPS CONLEY.

There was a rattling fight at the rooms of the Amateur Athletic Association on Jan. 12, between Doc O'Connell and Eddie Conley, of Boston, Mass., for a $1,000 purse and the welter-weight championship left vacant by the death of Paddy Duffy, of Boston. James Sweeney was chosen referee, and James Corbett and Howe Hodgkins, of Boston, were behind Conley, while James F. Carroll and a fellow chim looked after Doc's interests. Time was called promptly at 8 o'clock.

After 6 rounds which were well contested, O'Connell knocked Conley down. He failed to respond to time and O'Connell was adjudged the winner.

TROUBLE AT A BOXING MATCH.

At the Astoria Athletic Club, Astoria, Oregon, on Dec. 26, the glove fight between Dave Campbell, of Portland, Ore., and Larry Sullivan, the Astoria champion, was decided. Sullivan was no match for Campbell, but no matter how great a pugilist he might have been he had no chance to win. The sporting men of Astoria thought they were taking Sullivan into a club room where he would have to box or be knocked out, and not to a hospital where his leg was to be amputated in order that Campbell might win.

While Sullivan was lying under the ropes with one leg off the stage, some one grasped his leg and slashed it in six places with a knife. Two of the cuts were so deep that they had to be sewed up. Three physicians were summoned and all pronounced the gashes cuts from a knife blade. This, with a referee who gave Campbell all the best of it, lost Sullivan a fight that he would certainly have made a draw at most.

MARYLAND CROWS OVER PENNSYLVANIA.

The great cocking main between Maryland and Pennsylvania was fought near Jersey City on January 8. The main attracted delegations from Norfolk, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Albany and Troy. The Maryland birds were backed by A. B. Silt, of Prince Georges county, the well-known breeder and sportsman. The birds pitted by Maryland were the famous Shawnecks and they were trained by Mike Kearney, of Long Island. The Pennsylvania birds were the J. A. Bentley stock of Belfast, Pa. They were backed by Ernest Maulek, the well-known breeder and brewer, of Marietta, Pa. Maulek's birds were trained by Wm. Peters, the renowned trainer and handler.

After weighing in eleven pairs were matched, and for either side to win the $500, dependent upon the old fight, it was required that six battles should be won.

Silt's showneck birds were in splendid condition and outclassed the Pennsylvania birds. They won the main in six straight battles, the first lasting 30 minutes and 30 seconds.

There was considerable betting on the result and on each battle, and C. C. Hayes, James C. McElrath, John D. Evans, John Potter, of the Washington, D. C., delegation, and Asa Shuff, of Altoona, Pa., returned home with plenty of wealth as they backed Silt's birds.

The eleven battles were not fought, as the backers of the Pennsylvania birds were so disgusted and surprised at their Waterloo, that at the end of the sixth fight they gave up the ghost and refused to fight the remaining five battles.

BROOKLYN AMATEURS.

The Corinthian Athletic Club and Company F of the Forty-seventh Regiment held their games on Jan. 5, in the large armory of the 4th in Marcy avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

W. B. Curtis, N. Y. A. C., acted as referee. The judges were Lieutenant-Colonel Eddy of the Forty-seventh Regiment; W. D. Day, N. Y. A. C.; M. W. Ford, B. H. A. C.; Captain Christofel of Company D, Forty-seventh Regiment, and R. Conn of the St. George A. C.

MILK AND A HALF RUN (Handicap)—Won by E. R. Leckard (155 yards), St. George A. C., in 7 minutes 9 1/2 seconds. E. J. Collier (140 yards), Company C Twentieth second Regiment, second, W. W. Kuhlke (90 yards), Prospect Harriers, third.

SEVENTY-FIVE YARDS DASH (Handicap)—After 26 trial heats the final was won by E. W. Allen (7 feet), of the Berkeley A. C., in 1 1/2 seconds; H. F. Thompson (14 feet), Varuna B. C., second; C. L. Keeseman (15 feet), Prospect Harriers, third.

EIGHT HUNDRED AND EIGHTY YARDS RUN (Novice)—Won by P. D. Cadmus, Corinthian A. C., in 2 minutes 19 seconds, M. Phlegary, Star A. C., second; Harry Hawthorne, Mohican A. C., third.

EIGHT HUNDRED AND EIGHTY YARDS RUN (Handicap)—First heat won by S. Walters (32 yards), Williamsburg A. C., Time, 2 minutes 14 1/2 seconds. Second heat won by D. F. Voorhees (25 yards), Nautilus B. C., Time, 2 minutes 14 1/2 seconds.

TWO MILE CYCLE RACE (Handicap)—First heat won by A. E. Steig (scratch), Riverside Wheelmen. Time, 6 minutes 22 1/2 seconds.

Second heat won by J. W. Judge (40 yards), Riverside Wheelmen. Time, 6 minutes 33 1/2 seconds.

BALL OF THE LOUIS J. BECK ASSOCIATION.

The Louis J. Beck Association ball will be held at the Germania Assembly Rooms, Nos. 291 and 293 Bowery, on the evening of Jan. 16.

Mr. Beck, for whom the society is named, is a protégé of Richard K. Fox, who presented him with the world's champion medal for being a most remarkable freak of nature, in that he can stick pins, needles and tacks into himself with impunity, and only draws the line at axes and Sioux tomahawks. The medal to be presented to the best "gentlemanly waiter" is a massive affair of gold, and will be known as the Louis J. Beck medal. Entries may be sent to this office and will also be received on the night of the ball at the hall.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the occasion, which bids fair to rank as one of the most select of its kind. Robert Jones, champion all-round dancer of the world, will meet all comers. George Donovan is president of the association. The other officers are: Dan Lawler, vice-president; Morris Laiter, treasurer; Wm. Hofacker, financial secretary; Frank Wilson, recording secretary, and Bart O'Connor, sergeant-at-arms.

Among the honorary members who have promised to be present are: George Kraus, Timothy D. Sullivan, Ed Regan, Phil Wisig, Charles Smith, J. H. Taylor, Dominick Mullaney, W. F. J. Prelle, Adolph Seelig, Charles Neil, Charles Young, Joe Martin, James Brady, John Heck and George Firman.

"LITTLE SURE SHOT'S" ALL RIGHT.

The newspapers throughout the land recently published the heartrending particulars of the death of Miss Annie Oakley, otherwise known as "Little Sure Shot," who gained name and fame as a markswoman and who holds a "Police Gazette" trophy as an emblem of her unerring aim. Many of the journals gave the minutest particulars of the sad deathbed scenes.

This letter dispels all controversy regarding the matter:

MR. RICHARD K. FOX: ASHFORD, England, Jan. 3, 1891.

DEAR SIR:—The papers all over Europe have been publishing the death of Annie Oakley, and I suppose before this it has got in the American press. It has caused us much trouble answering letters, telegrams and cablegrams. Will you kindly continue to let it in your largely circulated paper and oblige me by doing so. Miss Oakley is in the best of health enjoying her vacation in shooting game. She joins Buffalo Bill in April. Yours very truly,

FRANK E. BUTLER.

W. H. Verdon, of Western New York, at present stopping at the Coleman House, called on Richard K. Fox recently, and stated he would match Tom McCarthy, of Woburn, Mass., in a contest to a finish, with skin-tight gloves, against either Sailor Brown or Billy Baker, for $500 to $1,000 a side.

ATHLETIC SHOOTING AND OTHER CLURS WOULD DO well to send for my descriptive circular of medals and trophies before purchasing elsewhere. RICHARD K. FOX, Franklin Square, New York.

WARLING WINTER SPORTS.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

Pete McCoy and Jack McGee will box for an $800 purse at the Ajax Athletic Club, Boston, on Feb. 4.

Jack Files, who fought Johnny Regan, wants to battle with Danny Needham for the Seattle Club's $1,500 purse.

Jake Gaudaur is something of a wing shot, and won a prize up in Ontario last week by killing twelve straight birds.

J. C. McGirr, the Washington sporting man, won $1,200 from the Pennsylvania cockers on Jan. 8, at the Salt-Maulick main.

A new Canadian wrestling champion, John Leon, is out with a challenge. This is number 7,892 champion wrestler from Canada.

Paddy Gorman, the Australian middle-weight, and Mike Leary have been matched to fight at the Hudson Club, Jersey City, for a purse of $500.

Sandow says he is coming to America to arrange a match with Louis Cyr. If he cannot do better than put up a 252-pound dumbbell he will not be in it.

At Boston, on Jan. 7, the Harvard Athletic Committee rejected, by a vote of 5 to 4, the proposition of the graduates to appoint Colonel W. A. Bancroft coach to the Freshman and Varsity crews.

Austin Gibbons may succeed in defeating Andy Bowen, but the latter will test his stamina, although Jim Gibbons, Austin's brother and manager, says it has never been tested before. The "young fellow," as Jim calls Austin, can easily be too confident.

Mick Dooley, of Australia, has grown tired of trying to fight the heavy-weights. He has announced his intention of getting down to middle-weight (11 stone 4 pounds) and of fighting only boxers of that class. He now challenges anybody, Jim Hall preferred.

At Saginaw, Mich., on Jan. 7, "Billy" Lavine and Jack Sanderson fought two rounds, with gloves. The first round was tame, but in the second both men hammered each other hard. Sanderson was knocked down seven times and out. His jaw was fractured in two places.

Tommy McCarthy, of Woburn, Mass., and Jimmy Carroll, the Brooklyn middle-weight, have been offered a good purse for a meeting at the Ajax Club of Boston in the first week in February. The club want to arrange a match between McCoy and McGee, or some other good men.

George LeBlanche, the Marine, and Young Mitchell have signed articles to fight in the California Athletic Club, for a purse of $2,500. The battle will be decided on Feb. 2. Owing to the splendid feat records of the pugilists the impending contest will create a furor in sporting circles.

Sporting circles in London, England, are discussing the latest proposed pugilistic venture. If news of the announcement are to be believed, Frank Slavin, the Australian boxer, and Charley Mitchell will commence a sparring tour in the United States during the month of February.

The following special cable was received at this office:

LONDON, Jan. 6.

Sandow, the champion strong man, announces that he will go to America to compete against Louis Cyr for the "Police Gazette" championship trophy and the heavy-weight lifting championship of the world. The report concerning Cyr's feats has created a decided sensation here.

ATKINSON.

At Amsterdam, on Jan. 6, Joe Donoghue, of Newburgh, N. Y., amateur champion of the United States and Canada, won the half mile international skating race easily. He covered the distance in 1 minute 25 seconds. Donoghue also won the two mile race in 6 minutes 10 1/2 seconds, and on Jan. 7 he won the international mile skating race in 3 minutes 2 1/2 seconds, and followed this up by winning the five mile race in 16 minutes 2 1/2 seconds.

The "Sporting Standard," Australia, says: "Joe Goddard having refused to meet Peter Jackson in the Sydney Amateur Gymnastic Club, the latter in turn declines to fight Goddard in the Melbourne Club. The Melbourne body offered the men a purse of 1,100 sovereigns, but Jackson, in replying to them, said that he did not think Mick Dooley received fair play at their hands, and he was afraid that he would be similarly treated. Jackson also refused to put up a deposit for his fight with Slavin, and consequently that match may be considered off.

Duncan B. Harrison and the Messrs. Macmahon Brothers, of Her Majesty's Opera House, of Melbourne, have signed contracts for a tour of Australia of John L. Sullivan, Jack Barnett, Joe Lannon, Duncan B. Harrison and others. The party will sail from San Francisco in June, and will open at Her Majesty's Opera House in Melbourne in July. They will all be under the management of Macmahon Brothers, who will look after everything on their tour through the antipodes. The negotiations were made by John R. Rogers, the well-known agent. The Macmahon Brothers are famous as theatrical managers.

At Rosedale, Ind., on Jan. 3, there was a great pigeon shoot for prizes offered by Ed Savill, Geo. Seatre and Thos. Shannon, two wing shots, made a tie for first prize and divided the pot rather than shoot for winner. Eph Jacobs won third prize. Arrangements were immediately made for another contest between Seatre and Shannon for $120 a side, which took place on last Friday. Each man was allowed ten pigeons. Large outside bets were made, which ran as high as $20 to $10, and considerable money was put up. Shannon killed six birds and Seatre eight. The next day Hen Smith and Will Shannon shot at one bird each for $5. Smith brought his bird, while Shannon not only lost the bird but his $5. Articles of agreement have been drawn up and are now in possession of Johnny Fogarty, for a match to come off on Feb. 2, for $50 a side, between Thos. Shannon and Eph Jacobs. Each man will be allowed eleven birds. Twenty-five dollars has already been put up, the balance to be posted on the day of shooting.

The following specials were received at this office:

TORONTO, January 6.

Wm. O'Connor the champion oarsman, is going to forward $500 forfeit to Richard K. Fox, with a challenge to row any man in the world for $5,000 a side and the championship. It is the opinion here that O'Connor's challenge is a feeler for Jake Gaudaur, who has again made Canada his home. O'Connor has opened a hotel on Adelaide street. He is eager to arrange a race to be rowed in April or May.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6, 1891.

Jake Kilrain has returned here after a long absence. He met with a big reception. He was accompanied by Wm. Muldoon who will specially train him for his battle with George Gifford for a purse of $4,500. Kilrain and Muldoon will be joined by Ernest Roeder, and the trio will leave for New Orleans to witness the Fitzsimmons and Dempsey battle. From the Crescent City they will go to the Pacific Coast.

A special from Pensacola, Fla., says: "The great wrestling match between Greek George's Unknown, of New York, and Joseph P. Barry, champion light weight of the South for $250 a side and the light-weight championship of the world, was decided at the Opera House and Barry won, gaining three straight falls in 28 minutes. The match was three best in five falls. Greek Roman and catch-as-catch-can styles, the winner to take 65 per cent. of the door, the loser 35 per cent., each man was to weigh not over 155 pounds at the ring side on the night of the match, and "Police Gazette" rules to govern. The Opera House was well filled when the men appeared on the stage.

Henry G. Klink, the well-known walker, was referee. Prior to the contest Greek George met Frank McLaughlin, of Denver, Col., Greek Roman style. The Greek won two straight falls in 7 minutes 30 seconds, for a purse. Greek George challenged Barry to throw him four times in an hour for $250 a side, Greek Roman style. Barry accepted, and they will meet in two weeks' time within 100 miles of Pensacola."

A congregation of sporting men were at this office one day last week to witness Richard K. Fox present Ernest Roeder, of New York, the champion Greek-Roman wrestler, with the "Police Gazette" championship medal, which Roeder recently won by defeating Malakoff, the Russian champion, and Big Heinrich, the champion of the Central Turn Verein of New York. Roeder is going with Jake Kilrain and Wm. Muldoon to San Francisco, and will assist the latter to train Kilrain for his battle with George Gifford.

Richard K. Fox in presenting the medal said that he was glad to be enabled to show his appreciation of Roeder's talents as a champion at wrestling by presenting him with such a valuable trophy, and trusted that he would defend the championship emblem against all comers and successfully hold the trophy as long as he lived. Roeder in reply stated that he would defend the trophy and meet all comers, and that he barred no one no matter whether he was Evan Lewis, Carl Abs or any other athlete. The "Police Gazette" medal is an elegant and valuable trophy, and Roeder and his friends were pleased with it.

ON THE FROZEN TRACK.

Keeping the Flyers and Their Jockeys Warm in Cold Weather.

Allie Bonner, a thorough son of his father, has issued his stock catalogue.

The English Jockey Club have adopted the following definition of added money: "Added money means whatever is given to the winner or other horses engaged, arising from any source other than stakes, forfeits, subscriptions, entrance money or fines."

Gresford, winner of several two-year-old events in Australia, has been sold to W. T. Jones, owner of Bravo, for $5,000. He is by The Drummer, son of Katsipan and My Niece by Cowl. He cut up very soft, however, at Caulfield, and was scratched for all engagements at Flemington.

In 1885 the 2:30 list had 63 representatives, of which Flora Temple was the only one below 2:30. The 2:30 list had only George M. Patchen, 2:23 1/2, Prince, by Long Island Black Hawk, 2:24 1/2, John Morgan, 2:24 and California Danzel, 2:24 1/2. Brown Dick and E. Han Allen were a tie on 2:25 1/2, while Lady Suffolk and Cooley were equal on 2:26. Now a 2:25 horse is barely standard, while a horse that cannot do better than 2:35 is only saleable for a roadster.

Some idea of the amount of money to be added to the fixed events for two-year-old runners this year may be obtained from the subjoined statement: The Futurity stakes of 1891 will be worth, at the lowest calculation, $100,000, the added money to which is $12,500. The Great Trial, $10,000 added; Friendly, $15,000 to the winner; Great American, worth $20,000; the Double Event, $10,000 added. White Plains and Matron, each $10,000 added; Great Eclipse stakes, worth not less than $25,000; Junior Champion stakes, worth not less than $25,000, to say nothing of the many events to which the added money is from $1,500 to $2,500.

America does not lead the world in racing as in many other things, but it may in the future. England is still ahead of this country in money won by three-year-olds. Donovan alone at this age having won nearly twice the amount credited to either Hanover or Tournament. Australia is away ahead of America in racing, judging by the account of the Melbourne Cup contest in Australia. A field of 39 horses, racing for a stake for which $50,650 was given in added money, the winner carrying 145 pounds over a distance of two miles, and the contest witnessed by an assemblage of 80,000 people, is the story in a nutshell. The winner, Carbine, carried 13 pounds more than the second horse, and 54 more than several others in the race, and yet won easily and eclipsed the record for the race, running the two miles in 3:23 1/2.

Notwithstanding the fact that Carbine carried 145 pounds in the Melbourne Cup, he was tipped as the winner by no less than four turf prophets in Melbourne, chief among which was Mr. Charles Lusk, editor of the Sportsman. The next highest weight ever carried by a winner was 142 pounds, by Archer, who won it twice. But in Archer's days the quality of horses was not up to the present standard, the fields were smaller and the system of training was vastly inferior to that of to-day. Some of the turf prophets tipped Chaldean, who was in at 102 pounds, but he never showed in any part of the race. Another strong tip was out on Tantalus, by Wellington out of imp. Phlegiz, but he died away at a mile and three quarters. Strange that Carbine, who ran all abroad in the Derby, should have gotten third money in the Cup in the face test two miles ever made by horses in a bona fide race. There were 39 starters in the Cup.

Carbine, the winner of the Melbourne Cup, has started in 36 races, of which he has won 27 and has only run once unplaced. Dreadnought beat him twice, and so did Abercorn; Melos, Lochiel and one or two others scoring single victories over him. The Melbourne Cup is his eleventh consecutive win, and probably the last, as he pulled up very lame at the finish. He was bred by the New Zealand Stud Co., which also bred Martin Henry, Matchlock and Nordfeldt. As a yearling he was sold to Daniel O'Brien for 420 guineas. O'Brien then sold him in November, 1888, to Mr. Donald Wallace for 3,000 guineas, and that gentleman has since won about £24,000 in plates and stakes with him.

In groups of four, the fastest performers on the trotting turf are as follows:

mares—Maud S., 2:08 1/2; Sunol, 2:10 1/2; Margaret S., 2:12 1/2; Belle Hamlin, 2:12 1/2.

Geldings—Jay-Eye-See, 2:10; Guy, 2:10 1/2; St. Julien, 2:11 1/2; Jack, 2:12 1/2.

Stallions—Nelson, 2:10 1/2; Stamboul, 2:11; Axtell, 2:12; Palo Alto, 2:12 1/2.

Yearlings—Freedom, 2:20 1/2; Norlaine, 2:21 1/2; Faustino, 2:25; Studle D., 2:25 1/2.

Two-year-olds—Sunol, 2:18; Regal Wilks, 2:20 1/2; Wild Flower, 2:21; Vida Wilks, 2:22 1/2.

Three-year-olds—Sunol, 2:10 1/2; Axtell, 2:12; Regal Wilks, 2:17 1/2; Lillian Wilks, 2:17 1/2.

Four-year-olds—Sunol, 2:10 1/2; Margaret S., 2:12 1/2; Nancy Hanks, 2:14 1/2; Alabaster, 2:15.

Five-year-olds—Jay-Eye-See, 2:10 1/2; Patron, 2:14 1/2; Alvin, 2:14 1/2; Susie S., 2:15 1/2.

Recently the well-known secretary of the New York Jockey Club, Mr. T. Herman Kock, who came to New York two years ago from the South, and who in that short space of time, has acquired the reputation of being one of the most brilliant men connected with the New York turf, was entertained at the country home, Chestnut Hill, of Mrs. E. G. Fell. The New Year's dinner to Mr. Kock is an annual festival commemorating the perilous and romantic shipwreck of twelve years ago, in which he played a most prominent part. Mrs. Fell and the other passengers feel that to his efforts in a great measure they owe their lives. The vessel, which was one of the Morgan Steamship Company's, was sunk in a hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico, and through Mr. Kock's remarkable coolness and presence of mind a panic was averted and the passengers were transferred to the life-boats, where for three days they were tossed helplessly about, and finally rescued when on the point of despair.

THE MODERN SAMSON. WE ARE NEVER UNPREPARED.

Cyr Desirous of Meeting the Big Ones.

REFEREE'S REMARKS ON PUGILISM.

The Boston "Globe" publishes a sketch of Louis Cyr, the "Police Gazette" champion strong man, in which it says:

"A great deal has been heard of Louis Cyr, the Canadian strong man, who recently made such a sensation in the Police Gazette office by his inimitable feats of strength. On Dec. 29, at Fulton, N. Y., Cyr gave an exhibition of his powers, and lifted 3,363 pounds by pushing with his back on a platform set on trestles.

"Cyr is the last man in the world who would be taken for a strong man. He is about 5 feet 9 inches in height, and so compact that he looks very much shorter. He was born in the Province of Quebec, Canada, was sent to Montreal to fulfill an engagement with Gus Lambert, then running a saloon in that city. Cyr then went to St. Cuneogonde, a village adjoining Montreal, and became a policeman. Later, he opened a saloon, and, incidentally, juggled with 250-pound bells, lifts of 1,500 pounds, and such like trifles.

"In about 1884 he put up a 250-pound dumbbell with a steady push from the shoulder, and raised 2,900 pounds by means of a platform on trestles, getting under it as to push it up with his back. Cyr was then afraid of bursting a blood vessel, and kept quiet for a time, only now to burst on the public with the wonderful work credited to him in New York.

"At the time he lived in Montreal he weighed about 300 pounds, had arms that were naturally as hard as mahogany, but he labored with his breathing so that it was feared he would become afflicted with apoplexy. This he seemingly has battled with, and is said to be in magnificent health."

The Boston "Globe" notice is very flattering to the strongest man in the world, but it omits several of the modern Samson's most wonderful feats, which were accomplished in 1888 and 1889.

Cyr lifted 440 pounds with one finger at St. Henri, Canada, on Nov. 2, 1889. He eclipsed the above performance in this office by lifting two dumbbells and a man weighing 150 pounds with one finger, the aggregate weight being 480 pounds. This is the best performance on record. At Berthier, Ont., Oct. 1, 1888, Cyr lifted with his arms and legs 3,363 pounds of iron placed on a platform. This feat has been both at St. Henri and at Fulton, N. Y.

"The most remarkable feat was putting up a 205-pound dumbbell with one hand from the ground to the shoulder, pushing it up slowly from shoulder to arm's length with hand. Cyr's feat of putting up a 255 pound dumbbell is the greatest performance on record. It was not accomplished as were the other many dumbbell lifting performances credited to other strong men, the public and the judges taking it for granted that the dumbbell weighed 265 because the figures were painted on the dumbbell, or because the athlete said the dumbbell was of the weight claimed. Cyr's feat was performed in the presence of competent officials, who certified the facts.

Cyr is, without doubt, the strongest man living, and Richard K. Fox will give Sandow, Hercules, Cyclops, or any man living who can perform the feats of the physical wonder, Cyr, $500 and a trophy. Sandow and Hercules have made a great sensation in London, England, in a competition, but no feat they accomplished could be compared to the five wonderful feats Cyr performed in this office.

If Sandow and Hercules are looked upon as wonderfully strong men, then the "Police Gazette" champion is a phenomenon. He does not know his own strength, for at every attempt to beat previous performances he succeeds. He is only 28 years of age, weighs over 300 pounds, while his measurements are something wonderful. If ever he enters a competition against the Ajaxes, Herculeses, Sandows, and others of like ilk, little importance will be attached to their great muscular powers compared with those of Cyr, the genuine modern Samson.

Billy Madden, the popular and efficient manager of Joe McAuliffe, the Mission Boy, of San Francisco, Cal., will have plenty of business to attend to now that he is home again. Madden has been authorized, so says a special cable to this office, to match Frank P. Slavin for $1,000 to $5,000 to knock out John L. Sullivan in six rounds. Madden is also commissioned to match Charley Mitchell against John L. Sullivan to battle according to London prize ring rules for $5,000 a side, the battle to be fought in a twelve-foot ring.

If Slavin was in America John L. Sullivan might be induced to step into the ring with the champion for a six round contest. Even then it is doubtful whether Sullivan would agree to meet Slavin, because he is making a big revenue every week and is not, under any circumstances, eager to again enter the roped arena. Slavin must, I think, place great confidence in his battering powers to even offer to undertake to whip a pugilist who has been a phenomenon in the prize ring, and who has never met with defeat. He thinks he can do it in the short space of twenty-three minutes, which is the time (deducting one minute for rest) the contest would last.

If such a match was arranged to take place in the Olympic Club, at New Orleans, or in the California Athletic Club, the contest would not only create a furor, but thousands of dollars would be wagered on the result. The majority would bet odds that the Australian would not succeed in his attempt to accomplish what looks to be an almost impossible feat.

If Slavin had made the offer to knock out Jake Kilrain, Charley Mitchell, Peter Jackson or Jim Corbett in six rounds I would not be surprised at his offer, neither would I be surprised if he accomplished the feat, but the idea of offering to knock out a pugilist with such a wide-spread and a national reputation as that of Sullivan appears to be absurd.

Slavin is well aware that Sullivan has retired, and probably that is one reason why he makes such a daring offer, knowing that it is dollars to doughnuts that Sullivan will not accept the challenge. If Slavin is confident that he possesses the muscular power to knock out pugilists in a stipulated time why doesn't he make a bid for an easier mark than the retired champion? The sporting public would then not look upon his challenge as a mere bluff.

The next great athletic encounter will be the battle between George Giffey, of Boston, Mass., the colored heavy-weight champion of America, and Jake Kilrain, the ex-champion of America and holder of the "Police Gazette" championship belt, for a purse of $4,500, offered by the California Athletic Club. Not only will the contest create considerable interest among the non betting fraternity, but also among those who speculate heavily on the chances of pugilists winning or losing in the arena.

Giffey's last two victories over Jack Ashton and Ed Smith will make his admirers believe that he has a first-class chance to defeat Kilrain, and they will put out their money freely on the prospects of his defeating one of the heroes of the great battle at Richmond, Miss., in 1889 for $25,000, the "Police Gazette" belt and the championship of the world.

If Kilrain's ill luck does not still follow him—a d no one can gainsay the fact that he has been unlucky, as witness his draw with Jim Smith, when he should have won, losing his battle with John L. Sullivan, and then meeting with defeat with Jim Corbett—he will stand an all chance with Giffey.

No.
F. B. S., Baltimore, Md.—At Marysville, Cal., on July 23, 1890, Peter Jackson, the heavy-weight colored champion, and Tom Johnson, engaged in a 4-round glove contest. Johnson proved no match for the Australian, but he stood up manfully and received heavy punishment without flinching. He managed to make Jackson work as hard during the 4 rounds as in any fight he ever had.
R. A. J., Boston, Mass.—1. No. 2. Mick Dooley is twenty-seven years of age, a New South Welshman, stands 5 feet 11 1/2 inches; chest 39 inches; calf 15 inches; thigh 18 inches; weight in fighting trim 12 stone. Mick, who is well known as the "genial," owing to his quiet and mild manner, has kept no record of his encounters, but has won a good many battles. Five or six years ago he was reckoned one of the coming men, and was noted for his clean and heavy left, while his defence and foot action were also good. When Peter Jackson came into prominence Dooley was thought good enough to match against him, but the colored man won. Dooley's last important engagement was eighteen months ago, when he met Francis Patrick Slavin in Sydney. His friends then thought he would make a good show against the hard-hitting Australian, but were rather disappointed, as Slavin won under one round. He was beaten by Goddard in the Sydney Amateur Club, on the 25th of June, 1890, in 21 rounds. On Nov. 6, 1890, Dooley was defeated by Joe Goddard, in Melbourne, Australia, in 7 rounds.

A GOOD RESOLUTION!

To Advertise in the "Police Gazette" this Year.

Advertisers who make this wise resolution will find themselves able to afford a summer tour through Europe or a trip across this great Continent. Under date of Dec. 31 the Standard Silverware Co., of Boston, one of the largest advertising firms in the United States, write as follows:

"When we resume advertising, Feb. 1st, the

will be in it, for, as we have always stated, the POLICE GAZETTE needs no puffing from us. It will stand on its own merits. All that is needed is a trial to convince the most skeptical."

STANDARD SILVERWARE CO.

BREEDERS, ATTENTION!

Mr. Wm. Greening, of Pittston, Pa., writes as follows:

"I put a small advertisement in the POLICE GAZETTE, and the result was that I sold all the chickens I could spare. I could hardly keep enough to breed from. I received orders for chickens from all parts of the United States and Canada, and still get orders from people to whom chickens were sold at that time. I got more orders from the POLICE GAZETTE than from all other papers combined. I cannot tell you how much I think of your paper as an advertising medium."

These are only specimens of the letters received daily at this office, commending the POLICE GAZETTE as an excellent advertising medium, and we commend them to the thoughtful consideration of every advertiser in this country.

Sufferers from Nervous Debility, Youthful Indiscretions, Lost Manhood.

BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN!

Many men, from the effects of youthful imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have experimented with and discovered new and concentrated remedies. The accompanying prescription is offered as a certain and speedy cure, as hundreds of cases in our practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure ingredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.

R—Erythroxylon coca, 14 drachm.
Jervine, 14 drachm.
Helonias Dioica, 14 drachm.
Gelsemium, 8 grains.
Ext. igneum amara (alcoholic), 2 grains.
Ext. leucandra, 2 scruples.
Silyberin, 4 g.

Make 60 pills. Take one pill at 3 p. m., and another on going to bed. In some cases it will be necessary for the patient to take two pills at bedtime, making the number three a day. This remedy is adapted to every condition of nervous debility and weakness in either sex, and especially in those cases resulting from imprudence. The recuperative powers of this restorative are truly astonishing, and its use continued for a short time changes the languid, debilitated, nerveless condition to one of renewed life and vigor. As we are constantly in receipt of letters of inquiry relative to this remedy, we would say to those who would prefer to obtain it from us, by remitting $1, a securely sealed package containing 60 pills, carefully compounded, will be sent by return mail from our private laboratory, or we will furnish 6 packages, which will cure most cases, for $6.

MEDICAL.

DONALD KENNEDY

Of Roxbury, Mass., says

My Medical Discovery seldom takes hold of two people alike! Why? Because no two people have the same weak spot. Beginning at the stomach, it goes searching through the body for any hidden humor. Nine times out of ten, inward humor makes the weak spot. Perhaps it's only a little sediment left on a nerve or in a gland; the Medical Discovery slides it right along, and you find quick happiness from the first bottle. Perhaps it's a big sediment or open sore, well settled somewhere, ready to fight. The Medical Discovery begins the fight, and you think it pretty hard, but soon you thank me for making something that has reached your weak spot. Write me if you want to know more about it.

For Gonorrhea, Gleet, Whites, &c.

HARMLESS, SURE AND QUICK. We have retailed at our store 33,735 boxes of MONNELL'S COMPOUND EXTRACT COPAIBA, CUBEBS AND IRON.

It is a Certain and Speedy Cure. Guaranteed in every case, no matter how obstinate or long standing. No other preparation like it. The iron used in this preparation, combined with the other ingredients, acts like a charm in its wonderful results, and has no equal. It is pleasant to take, does not impair the digestion and gives tone and strength to the entire system. No need for injection; therefore no danger of producing stricture. This is no humbug; it is a fact. CAUTION—This preparation is not sold in liquid or pill form. See that you get the genuine. The secret of the success of this remedy is simply this: We make the COPAIBA digest entirely—the only medicine in the world which does actually and thoroughly digest—consequently it is a specific. Ask your physician about it. It is recommended by eminent physicians. Price $1 by mail. C. E. MONNELL, druggist, First avenue, corner Houston street, New York, and by druggists generally.
